10% SINGLE BOTTLE RESTRICTION

When checking out your order, you may find a warning that you have exceeded your bottle quantities allowance.

Please ensure your location orders in full case quantities as often as possible and maintains a maximum of 10% or less of the total cases ordered within your order period, in single bottle units.

*Your order period is the period between your Warehouse Release Time (WRT) each week. For example, if you receive a delivery once per week and your WRT is Wednesday at 12:00 p.m., your order period is from Wednesday at 12:00pm until your next scheduled WRT, the next week, at Wednesday at 12:00 p.m.

Please note, customers who receive multiple deliveries per week have more than one WRT per week and customers who receive a delivery once every two weeks will have a greater time span between their scheduled WRT's.

Please view the following page to determine how to calculate the 10% single bottle rule.

HOW TO CALCULATE 10% SINGLE BOTTLES

The 10% is calculated based on the table shown below using an example of 12 bottles per case. On page four, you will find an explanation on how to adjust your order.

Case Count Calculation	Multiplication Factor	Result
Total Cases (Current Order Period)	x 10%	Total Number of Bottle Pick Cases
Total Number of Bottle Pick Cases	x 12 bottles per case	Total Number of Bottles Allowed Per Order Period

Case Count Example	Multiplication Factor	Result
100 Cases	x 10%	You can have 10 bottle pick cases
10 Bottle Pick Cases	x 12 bottles per case	You can have 120 bottles allowed for the order period

CALCULATION HOW TO CALCULATE 10% SINGLE BOTTLES

To arrive at the calculations listed above, you will need to know how many cases you have already ordered for your current order period (see the definition of order period on page one) and then determine how many bottles you are allowed.

1. Gather your Order Submission Report(s) for orders placed during your current order period.
2. Using these reports, locate the 'LDB Stocked Product Expected for Delivery' and the 'Third Party Warehouse Stocked Product on Order' sections.
3. Add the case totals from each of these sections to determine the total number of cases you have accumulated within your current order period.
4. Next, please add the total cases you are ordering right now to the figure you have accumulated so far during your current order period.
5. Then, follow the 10% calculation as defined above.
6. The answer will be an approximate total bottle count accumulated during your current order period.
7. From this number, if you have ordered single bottles on other orders during your current order period, you will need to subtract the number of single bottles ordered during this time from the single bottles you are ordering now. These amounts can be also found on your Order Submission Report under the 'LDB Stocked Product Expected for Delivery' section. Only use quantities where the UOM is defined as bottles and the total bottles ordered is not a multiple of the case configuration (for example, if you order 24 btl, and the case configuration is 12 x 750ml).
8. The final answer will result in the total number of bottles you are able to order.
